

The A-Lister

Womanising Showbiz reporter Jack Stamp embarks on a mission to save a beautiful pop star from the clutches of a criminal mastermind selling celebrities to billionaires for sex. Along the way, Jack must fight for his job, his life and his love whilst trying to land the biggest scoop of his career. Inspired by author Joe Mott's years as a tabloid columnist, all the characters in this rip-roaring adventure are based on the people he met in almost a decade in newspapers and showbusiness. Watch out for salacious hidden anecdotes about REAL celebs in every chapter. Mott combines a technicolour romp to amuse the TMZ generation with an attempt to understand the monster at the heart of every man, a la the great Graham Greene. Who needs Mr Gray when you can have Jack Stamp! Joe Mott skewers the celeb and tabloid worlds with lethal precision in his debut novel. The writing is hard hitting, raw and gritty. It follows the theme of the book and there is no over-use of flowery descriptions which actually helps the flow of the story.
