Excerpt from Addresses at the Annual Meeting of the New West Education Commission: Held October 14, 1890, in the First Congregational Church, Chicago You go to Congress within the last six months, and you will find that perhaps the very heaviest lobby, financially and socially, is the lobby which represents one side or the other of the question of irrigation, so certain are the strong minds of the West that the irrigable land of the West - being yet untried and about. The only unsettled land, and being at all events the most desirable land - is the land upon which either righteous ness or unrighteousness is to control the most valuable mate rial resources of the next century.
