

The Day After the End of the World: A Tale of Catastrophe and Other Gifts

Mother Nature had a temper tantrum Within a three-day period, over three hundred tornados hit the South. On April 27th, 2011, seven monster-storms touched down in Cleveland, Tennessee. One EF4 tornado annihilated the little haven that Rebecca called home, devastated life, as she knew it, and threatened her sanity. The phenomenon was termed an outbreak. For Rebeccas family, a natural disaster was no longer something that happened to other people. It was personal, and after the wind died, their real battle against Mister Twister began. Volunteers arrived to help Rebecca pick up the pieces of her sanctuary. But, could she put those pieces back together again?
