

Emancipation in Louisiana: Speech (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Emancipation in Louisiana: Speech
Mr. Abell having offered a Minority Report in opposition to Emancipation, in the Constitutional Convention of Louisiana, it was moved that the same be rejected. A discussion arose on the question of Shivery, which occupied the Convention for several days. On Wednesday, May 4th, Mr. A. C. Hills, delegate from the Second Representative District, Parish of Orleans, addressed the Convention as follows: Mr. President: In the National Convention of 1794, a proposition was made to abolish slavery in the American colonies belonging to France. A member of that body arose and proceeded to defend the principles of universal liberty, whereupon he was interrupted by another member, who exclaimed: President! do not suffer the Convention to dishonor itself by a protracted discussion! It seems to me that for three days we have been witnesses of a most extraordinary spectacle. A body of men assembled on the avowed principles of universal freedom - elected on a platform of immediate emancipation, accepting seats on this floor under the proclamation which declared the slave laws in Louisiana inoperative and void, because they did not apply to any class of persons in this State - I say, a body so elected under that proclamation and upon that platform, is compelled to listen for three days, to one of its members standing up here and defending the accursed system of American slavery as it existed before this war. I said in my previous remarks, we could not do anything to perpetuate slavery without committing perjury before God and man.
