

Over My Shoulder

Hazel was the youngest in the family, born after her father came home from the First World War. Brought up in Herne Bay and then in Enfield during the 1920s and 1930s, in her reminiscences she gives a vivid series of snapshots of life in a simpler world. It is a picture of simple pleasures like blackberrying and visiting the baker, growing flowers in their own little gardens, going to the circus, and first boyfriends. She also gives a fascinating account of her grandparents - both paternal and maternal, who came from different worlds. Her fathers parents came from London, whereas her mothers had been in business in India. Each family has its stories to tell.
