

Childrens Hour with Red Riding Hood and Other Stories (Illustrated Edition) (Dodo Press)

Watty Piper was a pseudonym used by the publishing house Platt & Munk, who played an important part in the early development of the picture book market with the publication of the Never Grow Old Series of childrenas hardcover picture books. Beginning in 1930, the nine book series included retellings of several Mother Goose stories, and also included a new edition of Helen Bannermanas Little Black Sambo, illustrated by Eulalie Banks. The best known incarnation of the story The Little Engine That Could is attributed to Watty Piper with illustrations by Lois Lenski, this retelling of the tale The Pony Engine appeared in 1930. Other childrenas books published using the pseudonym Watty Piper include: Childrenas Hour with Red Riding Hood and Other Stories (1922), Animal Friends Story Book (1928), Fairy Tales Children Love (1932) and Bumper Book (1946).
