

England in Egypt (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from England in Egypt A new edition of England in Egypt having become necessary, I have been fortunate in inducing my friend Mr. Clinton Dawkins, who for the last four years has occupied my old post of Under-Secretary for Finance, to supply a brief summary of the recent important events in Egypt and the Sudan. When the fifth edition appeared in the spring of 1894, I wrote a preface bringing the narrative portion of the original work down to that date. On the present occasion I should have been at a great disadvantage in attempting to do this again. Deeply interested as I still am in Egypt, and following the course of events as closely as is possible from a distance, I yet necessarily lack that inside knowledge which gave England in Egypt whatever value it possessed.
