

The Ninety Year Saga: A Memoir of Life

From a broken home in a tiny town in 1924, to loving support from an extended family and his own will to push through and win whatever challenge faced him, Frank Donald Sokol set off on a long and serendipitous life's journey. The intervention of a World War provided him with growth, maturity and opportunities that he eagerly embraced. From thirty-five thousand feet in flak filled skies over Germany, to knee high grass on the Oxbow Ranch, to the Bench of the Superior Court, through personal triumphs and personal tragedies, Sokol has soared through the heights and rebounded from the lowest of lows. In his own words we follow a man who took life's challenges and made them into an adventure few of us have seen. We feel the heartache of a broken home, then the triumph of the love of an aunt and uncle - and his first cow horse - as he builds the character that later takes him to the cockpit of a B-17 over Berlin. Facing the heaviest flak the world has known, before or since, we watch a boy grow into a man, quickly. Watch as he buys the ranch of his dreams, the Oxbow, a real cow outfit, and the most beautiful out-of-doors as one famous cattleman described it. Follow the legal career from Stanford to the Superior Court Bench. Share his happiest at being high in the sky in his various airplanes and helicopters, and the joy of his first love - and more that followed. The ninety-year saga of Frank Donald Sokol will leave you wondering where your life went.
