

The Christmas Spirit: A Short Story for Christmas

Alf and Mary lost their beloved son on Christmas Eve. In the years following his death, they could not bring themselves to celebrate Christmas in any way. The years pass and the grief becomes entrenched and destructive. A poor, abused, cold, starving young man comes into their life as an escapee from a commune. Although from a troubled background, he is worldly-wise and forgiving and he seems able to break through their tough veneer of grief. Simply by providing a bed, food and warmth, they are able to see what their own son may have become and this young man leads them to make a startling, wonderful discovery - something which finally allows them to cope with their grief and so live again.
